3 The High-Born Ladye

In vain all the Knights of the Underwald wooed her,
Tho' brightest of maidens, the proudest was she;
Brave chieftains they sought, and young minstrels they sued h	er,
But worthy were none of the high-born Ladye.
"Whosoever I wed," said this maid, so excelling,	5
"That Knight must the conqueror of conquerors be;
"He must place me in halls fit for monarchs to dwell in; —
"None else shall be Lord of the high-born Ladye!"
Thus spoke the proud damsel, with scorn looking round her
On Knights and on Nobles of highest degree;	10
Who humbly and hopelessly left as they found her,
And worshipt at distance the high-born Ladye.
At length came a Knight, from a far land to woo her,
With plumes on his helm like the foam of the sea;
His visor was down — but, with voice that thrilled thro' her,	15
He whispered his vows to the high-born Ladye.
"Proud maiden! I come with high spousals to grace thee,
"In me the great conqueror of conquerors see;
"Enthroned in a hall fit for monarchs I 'll place thee,
"And mine thou 'rt for ever, thou high-born Ladye!"	20
The maider she smiled and in issuels amound has
The maiden she smiled, and in jewels arrayed her,
Of thrones and tiaras already dreamt she;
And proud was the step, as her bridegroom conveyed her
In pomp to his home, of that high-born Ladye.
"But whither," she, starting, exclaims, "have you led me?	25

"Here's naught but a tomb and a dark cypress tree;
"Is this the bright palace in which thou wouldst wed me?"
With scorn in her glance said the high-born Ladye.

"T is the home," he replied, "of earth's loftiest creatures" —

Then lifted his helm for the fair one to see;

But she sunk on the ground — 't was a skeleton's features,

And Death was the Lord of the high-born Ladye!
