Jonathan Swift (1667-1745)

2 A Ballad, to the Tune of, the Cut-Purse

I.
Once on a time, as old stories rehearse,
A friar would need show his talent in Latin;
But was sorely put to 't in the midst of a verse,
Because he could find no word to come pat in:
Then all in the place	5
He left a void space,
And so went to bed in a desperate case:
When behold the next morning a wonderful riddle!
He found it was strangely filled up in the middle.
CHO[R]. Let censuring criticks then think what they list on 't;	10
Who would not write verses with such an assistant?
II.
This put me the friar into an amazement:
For he wisely consider'd it must be a sprite;
That he came through the keyhole, or in at the casement;
And it needs must be one that could both read and write:	15
Yet he did not know
If it were friend or foe,
Or whether it came from above or below:
However, 'twas civil, in angel or elf,
For he ne'er could have fill'd it so well of himself.	20
CHOR. Let censuring, etc.
III.
Even so master doctor had puzzled his brains
In making a ballad, but was at a stand:
He had mixt little wit with a great deal of pains,
When he found a new help from invisible hand.	25
Then, good doctor Swift,
Pay thanks for the gift,
For you freely must own, you were at a dead lift:
And, though some malicious young spirit did do 't,

You may know by the hand it had no cloven foot. Cho[R]. Let censuring, etc.
